Production

Located just to the south-west of Lalande-de-Pomerol and Lussac Saint-Emilion, Chteau Dallau is situated in the commune of Saint Denis de Pile and is the home of Yvette Bertin. The Chteau's sand and gravel vineyards comprise 32 hectares of mostly Merlot, along with Cabernet Franc and some Cabernet Sauvignon and average 20 years of age. The grapes are harvested at full maturity by late September or early October, then taken to the winery for sorting and crushing. Low-temperature maceration takes place for a few days to extract the fruit's flavour. During vinification the temperature is carefully monitored to achieve the desired aromas and structure in the wines. Winemaker Sarah Boireau works with consultant Dr. Alain Raynaud to produce this Bordeaux Supérieur.

Tasting note

Aromas of luscious ripe plum and blackcurrant, with a touch of cedar. The palate is full bodied with plush, fruit showing some gentle evolution, rich, smooth tannins and a little gentle acidic lift make this a very well balanced, beautifully maturing claret. The grapes are harvested at full maturity by late September or early October, they are then taken to the winery for sorting and crushing. Low-temperature maceration takes place for a few days to extract the fruit's flavour. A second phase of high-temperature maceration then occurs.
