Emiliano Fini Grechetto 'Cleto', Lazio IGT 2022

IEF0012022

Emiliano Fini Viticoltore

— Lazio, Italy

Recent experiences have convinced us that Grechetto is a grape we really should be taking much more seriously, grown on the right soils it's capable of producing some quite serious wines.

Production

Organically grown Grechetto grapes from volcanic, mineral rich soils are hand picked at low yields and pressed gently. Natural vinification with wild yeasts. Typically one year bottle ageing prior to release.

Tasting note

Worth mentioning the labelling here before the flavours ... it's a good looking, very clean and quietly stylish bottle ... sets the tone quite nicely!There's a soft and generous start to the wine ... white stone fruits with an almondy backnote, lovely textures and a general 'Oooh that's quite nice' sort of feel. The flavours broaden out though and it's at that point that the distinctly mineral, crisper, more energetic side of the wine cuts in ... stones and citrus zest ... quite long and fine. Very appetising without any excess acidity ... subtle bitter twist ... lovely.

Food Match

We're not far from the sea here ... the fish would cost more than the wine for sure ... but this wouldn't let even a nice Turbot down.
