Passing Giants Pinot Noir, Marlborough [Organic] 2020

Boutinot New Zealand

— Marlborough, New Zealand

New Zealand's marginal weather is down to the clouds that define its climate and, after all, its Maori name. The whole cycle of life is entirely subject to the whim of weather and its climatic intemperance. A fleeting hailstorm can wreak havoc in a vineyard, just as the absence of clouds will assist frost in cold climes and lead to drought in summer. We celebrate those cruel, damning and wine-defining weightless gods above in Passing Giants, our new pair of organic wines from Marlborough.

Production

This wine spends 10 months in new and older French oak barriques supports the fruit with a fine, gently toasty structure for a Pinot that is ultimately lifted yet generous.

Tasting note

There's a lot to enjoy here, from the darkly exotic allspice of the nose to the refreshing plum and milky cherry-chocolate generosity of the palate.

Food Match

This wine is crying out for hoi sin sauce and (organic) duck pancakes.
