Boutinot Spain

— Yecla, Spain

In Yecla, the fruit of the dandelion clock is commonly known as 'Abuelico', deriving from the world 'Abuelo', meaning grandfather. This is also a nod to the white hair of grandfathers and the white plumes of the dandelion clock.

Production

Organically grown Syrah sourced from vineyards planted at 650 metres above sea level on mineral rich, silty and sandy soils. Fermentation takes place in stainless steel tanks, with further maturation in oak to add complexity and depth to the final wine.

Tasting note

Intense cherry red colour, with hints of violet hues. The palete is fruit forward with notes of violets and blackberry, along with spicy notes of liquorice and pepper.

Food Match

Excellent with lamb cutlets, barbecue pork, or tomato dishes with a hint of chilli.
