Power Lines Red Field Blend, WO Paarl 2025

SBO0702025

B Sides

— Paarl, South Africa

Power Lines represents two neighbouring parcels of vines that Wildeberg winemaker JD was keen to work with after tasting other field blends from around the world; the finished wines speaking more of the region than a single varietal can. The name Power Lines comes from the large pylons which dominate the horizon and actually connect a few of the vineyards we work with despite the large distances between them.€‹

Production

The varietals are planted in their own respective rows and harvested and fermented together in used French oak for 9 months.

Tasting note

Lots of ripe black fruit notes complemented with a broad mouthfeel. The wine is generous in texture and fruit character and although it will age gracefully thanks to its structure it has been made to be immediately drinkable in its relative youth.
